X.J. Kennedy

Poet and Author

X. J. Kennedy is best known for his light verse. His books have won numerous awards and honors, including Guggenheim and National Arts Council fellowships, a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Bess Hokin Prize from Poetry magazine, and a Los Angeles Times Book Award for poetry.

He has taught English at Tufts University, the University of Michigan and the University of North Carolina Greensboro. Kennedy received the National Council of Teachers of English Year 2000 Award for Excellence in Children's Poetry. He also is widely known for his Brats series of dark poetry books for children, his translation of Aristophanes' Lysistrata, and Tygers of Wrath, an anthology of angry verse.

The One World Series is an annual speaker series addressing topics of current interest. This event is made possible by MCC's Student Union Government Association and the Humanities Division.
