

The Office of Professional Development has been developing a new model that makes greater use of internet-based resources so that faculty and staff can access a wide range of reusable professional development tutorials. The majority of the new media is being provided by Atomic Learning, an e-learning company that provides professional development content, much of it specifically created for professionals in education.

Adjunct faculty can login through MyMCC anytime and click on the Blackboard link to access "MCC Professional Development Online". This link should provide a video detail of the process: <https://www.middlesex.mass.edu/RLOs/821/Accessing%20Online%20PD.html>