Welcome to the Disability Support Services Department, your connection to information regarding services for students with disabilities.

What is Disability Support Services?

The collegiate experience at Middlesex, on the campus and in the classroom, is open to students of varying abilities and levels of adaptive skills. Supportive faculty and staff as well as fellow students encourage all students to participate in extracurricular and class activities. The DSS office provides services and resources to empower each student to attain his/her highest level of academic success and learning independence.

Many motivated students are able to overcome obstacles, to become independent learners and academic achievers. Middlesex Community College has designed support services specifically for students who have physical, psychiatric, and/or learning disabilities. Who is Eligible?

Any full or part-time, day or evening student with a documented disability is eligible for services and/or accommodations. The accommodations are designed for the student's specific disability and needs. Students seeking accommodations through Disability Support Services office are required to submit documentation to verify eligibility under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Protection under these civil rights statutes is determined on a case-by-case basis and is based upon documentation of a current disability that substantially limits a major life activity.

To ensure accommodation in a timely manner, it is advised that students send documentation of an existing disability to Disability Support Services as early as possible.

For questions regarding eligibility or accommodations please contact us:

What are the Documentation Guidelines?

1. Testing must be current. A student seeking accommodations must provide current documentation (no more than four years old) for a condition which can change over time or which responds to medication. A student seeking accommodation for a condition that does not change over time is encouraged to provide current documentation of his/her condition, however, re-testing may not be medically necessary to evaluate the student's disability. It is advised that students consult the Director of Disability Services for clarification. Because the provision of reasonable accommodations and services is based upon assessment of the current impact of the student's disabilities on his/her academic functioning, it is in a student's best interest to provide recent and appropriate documentation.
2. Testing should provide clear and specific evidence and identification of a disability.
3. Documentation should address the impact of the disability on an individual's functioning within the context of the academic and vocational environment. Comprehensive assessment should include consideration of the following (as relevant to the nature of the student's disability): physical capacity, neurological functioning, cognitive and psychological/emotional functioning. It is recognized that the type of documentation will differ depending upon the disability. Evaluation of psychological/emotional functioning must be in accordance with DSM-IV-TR criteria.
Specific areas of evaluation include (but are not limited to) the following:
 - Endurance
 - Fine & Gross Motor Skills
 - Balance & Postural Control
 - Pain
 - Sensory Registration & Processing
 - Visual Perception
 - Use of Supports
 - Mood & Affect
 - Organizational Skills
 - Problem Solving
 - Coping Skills
 - Memory
4. Evaluation results and interpretation of results is required.
5. Documentation must be submitted by a qualified practitioner. Trained, certified and/or licensed physicians, psychologists, learning disabilities specialists, occupational, physical, or speech-language pathologists, and other professionals are representative of clinicians involved in the process of assessment. Diagnostic reports must include the names, titles, and professional credentials of the evaluators as well as the date(s) of testing.
6. Include specific recommendations for accommodations. Any

What are the Physical Disabilities Documentation Guidelines?

For students with visible disabilities (e.g. students with mobility impairments), the student should provide documentation from a licensed medical professional (or interview with a Disability Services Provider depending upon the circumstances), which discloses:

- The nature of the individual's disability
- The functional limitations resulting from the disability
- Prognosis, when appropriate
- Recommended accommodations

For students with non-visible physical disabilities, the individual should provide current documentation from a licensed medical professional, which discloses:

- The nature of the disability
- The functional limitations resulting from the disability
- Prognosis, when appropriate
- Recommended accommodations

For students with vision or hearing impairment, the individual should provide current documentation from a qualified medical professional which indicates:

- The extent of the vision or hearing acuity
- The functional limitations resulting from the disability
- Prognosis, when appropriate
- Recommended accommodations

Are there accommodations for Temporary Disabilities?

Although students with temporary disabilities or illnesses may not be considered disabled under federal law, they may sometimes need accommodations similar to those provided to students with permanent disabilities. To receive an accommodation, a student must present documentation of their temporary disability as soon as the disability is documented. Reasonable accommodations will be made on a prospective basis only, not on a retroactive basis.

What are the Testing Guidelines?

If you plan to use a test taking accommodation through Disability Support Services, you must follow these guidelines.

1. Tests must be booked as soon as possible after assigned by the professor. We prefer that you book one week in advance. We need time to reserve a room and/or computer, get the test from the professor, and make arrangements for a monitor. During mid-terms and final exams, you should book your test as early as possible. Many students will be testing, and space can be limited.
2. Tests must be booked for the same time the professor is giving the test to the rest of the class. For example, if the professor is giving the test at 9:00 am on Tuesday, you should make your appointment to take the test for 9:00 am on Tuesday. The only exception to this rule would be a schedule conflict due to another class. You will not be allowed to leave the room once you begin the test, so please plan accordingly.
3. You must be punctual for your appointment. When you book your test, you have reserved a block of time. If your test is from 9:00 am to 11:00 am and you show up for your test at 9:30, you will be affecting other students' schedules. We cannot guarantee availability of your testing room past the end of your block of time.
4. You are scheduled to begin your test at the time you have booked it. Studying should be done prior to your arrival to take your test. If you would like to study before the test, arrive a few minutes early for your appointment.

5. Testing accommodations include Distraction Reduced and /or Extended Time Testing. The appropriate accommodation for you has been determined based on the documentation that you provided. Distraction reduced testing means that you have a quiet place to take your test, with fewer distractions than in the regular classroom setting. There may be more than one student and/or a proctor in a distraction reduced setting. Extended time for testing is not unlimited time, it is double the class time. For example, if you have a 50 minute class, you would have 100 minutes or one hour and 40 minutes to complete your test.
6. All personal items, including cell phones, blackberries and other similar devices, book bags, back packs, jackets, notebooks, and purses must be left with Disability Support staff during test taking. All items will be kept secure by staff during testing. The only items allowed for use are those indicated by the instructor on the green testing communication form.
7. Window blinds must be left in an open position in the room where you are testing.
Staff members must be able to monitor you at all times.
8. Testing conditions are the same as in the classroom. Once the test begins, you are not to leave the room. Tests will not be broken up into separate sections. The test is to be done in one session, unless specified by the Instructor and arranged prior to the test with Disability Support. At the completion of testing, students must leave the entire examination with our office.

What is the testing communication form?

The purpose of the testing communication form is to provide DSS with pertinent information regarding the test you are taking. Students are responsible for picking up a form at the time they schedule their test and giving it to their teacher. The teacher will indicate any special instructions needed. DSS will make every effort to implement the special instructions if they fall within the realm of our policies.

Is there an appeals process?

Students have the right to appeal the College's decisions regarding requests for accommodation through the College's grievance procedure. The purpose of grievance/appeal procedures is to attempt to resolve internally all types of grievances at the level where they occur and in a timely manner.

It is to the student's advantage to keep communication open with faculty, staff and peers, thus avoiding the necessity for appeals. If there is a situation that the student feels is escalating and she/he is uncomfortable with the direction it is going, CONTACT SOMEONE IMMEDIATELY TO REQUEST

ASSISTANCE: faculty, the department chair, the dean of students, the Disability Services Office, or the financial aid office (whichever is deemed most appropriate). In the event a situation is not resolved, there are procedures for appeals in place that usually follow the chain of command as listed:

Grades—Academic departments (faculty, chair, dean)

Financial Aid—Financial Aid Office (advisor, director)

General Complaints—dean of students

Parking—chief of security

Sexual Harassment—Affirmative Action

The coordinator of Disability Services will support and assist in the process with the above procedures when it is a reasonable request.

Is there an incomplete grade policy if it's disability related?

Due to extenuating disability-related circumstances (e.g., hospitalization), a student may be unable to complete coursework/examinations within the semester. Provided with adequate verification of circumstance, on occasion, a faculty member may grant the student an incomplete. Ultimately, the faculty member determines whether the amount of work to make-up is limited enough to warrant an incomplete. Disability support staff may facilitate contracts between the student and faculty member to determine what would be a “reasonable” time frame for completion. Once established, make-up schedules are non-negotiable.

What is the policy on note taking?

Unless medical/ educational documentation deems a student incapable, eligible students with disabilities are still responsible for taking notes to the best of their ability. Note-taking services are supplemental to assist students in providing sufficient detail, weighing salient information, and/ or organizing information.

Students with disabilities are required to attend class in order to continue to receive notes. Unless there is a substantiated medical reason, instructors should notify Disability Support Services of repeated absences, and note-taking services may be suspended.

Student responsibilities:

- Obtain Accommodation Form with “Copies of Class Notes,” from Disability Support Services (DSS) and notify instructor.
- Promptly notify DSS staff if instructor is having difficulty recruiting volunteers.
- Collect photocopies of class notes from DSS at least once per week.
- Notify instructor and/ or DSS staff if notes are illegible or inconsistently available.

Faculty responsibilities:

- Provide copies of faculty notes if available.
- If possible, specifically ask a student to volunteer who appears to have organized notes.
- Solicit a volunteer while protecting the student with a disability’s confidentiality.
- Provide student note-taker with the “Copies of Class Notes” hand out and direct him/her to the DSS office.

Student note-taker’s responsibilities:

- Bring notes to DSS office to be copied at least once per week.

What if I need a sign language interpreter?

The Disability Support Services Office will coordinate sign language interpreter services for students who are deaf or hard-of-hearing. Any student requesting a sign language interpreter must do so in accordance with the following DSS policies:

- Prior to the beginning of the semester, the student must submit documentation of his or her deafness or hearing loss to the DSS office. Based on this documentation, DSS staff will determine eligibility for interpreter services.
- If an interpreter is needed for a class/classes, the student must make the request to the DSS office a minimum of 4 weeks prior to the beginning of the semester. Because of interpreter availability, it may be difficult to fulfill requests made less than 4 weeks in advance.
- If an interpreter is needed for an event, appointment, or meeting, the student should make the request to the DSS office as soon as possible, preferably at least 2 weeks prior to the event.
- The student must introduce himself to the interpreter on the first day of class.
- The student is required to notify the DSS office as soon as possible, preferably within 24 hours, if unable to attend a class or event.

- Interpreters are required to wait only 15 minutes after a class or event begins. If a student does not show up or notify the DSS office, the interpreter will leave and the student will be marked absent.
- If a student misses 3 classes and/or events, interpreting services will be terminated until the student meets with staff in the DSS office,

DSS will do everything possible to arrange for sign language interpreting services for eligible students. Due to limited interpreter availability in Massachusetts, it may not always be possible to honor all requests.

What is the Service Animal Policy?

Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) a service animal (sometimes called an assistance animal) is defined as, “any guide dog, or other animal individually trained to provide assistance to an individual with a disability”. A service animal is specifically trained to perform tasks related to the person’s disability and is not considered a pet.

Both therapy animals and emotional support animals may be part of an individual’s therapy or treatment plan, but unless they have been specifically trained to do work or perform tasks related to an individual’s disability, they are not to be considered service animals and their use is not protected under the ADA.

The following policies apply to service dogs used on the Middlesex Community College campus:

- All service animals must be licensed in accordance with city and county regulations.
- All service animals must be current in their immunizations against diseases specific to the type of animal. Dogs must be vaccinated against rabies, distemper, and parvovirus and other animals must have the appropriate vaccinations that are required for that particular animal. A licensed veterinarian must certify that the animal has been vaccinated and is healthy and free of any communicable diseases.
- The service animal must be leashed and under control of its handler/partner at all times. The care and supervision of the service animal is solely the responsibility of its handler/partner.
- Any animal that is not in control and that poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others may be excluded from the MCC campus.
- When physically possible, a person with a disability is responsible for cleaning up after his/her service animal. Any individual who is physically unable to clean up should take his/her animal to designated toilet areas whenever possible.
- There may be some areas of the college where a service animal has restricted access. This is to be determined on a case by case basis.

What are the Guidelines for Personal Assistants and Coaches in the Classroom?

The college recognizes that the role of the personal assistant/ coach is important to the success of the student. In an effort to ensure that the individuals who receive services from an outside support person will be recognized as a contributing member of the class, the following guidelines have been established.

The personal assistant/ coach is expected to follow these guidelines:

1. Attend to the personal needs for which he/ she has been hired; i.e., monitor equipment, retrieve books, redirect student to task without disrupting the class, etc.

*The college is responsible for proctoring, scribing, accommodating tests and providing access to adaptive technologies on campus.
2. Demonstrate appropriate classroom behavior. Any problems or concerns with the student's performance or attendance should be directed to the student.
3. Assistant should not carry on conversations with the student during class.
4. Assistant should not actively participate in the class or in conversations between the student and faculty, staff, or other students.
5. Assistant should abide by all college policies as described in the Student Handbook.
